Kangsan Myeonok in the city of Daegu dates back to 1951, when the founding family left North Korea during the war and started cooking recipes reminiscent of their home. Its current location, on the second floor of an old shopping plaza, opened in 1958. The restaurant is known for its Pyeongang-style naengmyeon (iced noodles), but the real winner is the galbi-jjim (braised beef short ribs).
