The third of the revamped '9000 Series,' Labyrinth Of Evil delivers a re-crafted perspective on Star Wars Episode III in keeping with the drive of the original trilogy of films. Anakin's fall to the dark side is portrayed in a more believable way, with political motivations that are ignited by, rather than preceded by, a desire to save his wife. Padmé's role is expanded, and her fate is made to match her daughter's memories.

So in Labyrinth of Evil Luceno says that Anakin draws on his anger to fight and that he does this consciously/on purpose. But in Episode 3 I always had the distinct impression that the scene when Count Dooku says "You have hate, you have anger, but you don't use them" and Anakin's besting of him was supposed to show that Anakin is actively trying to do the right thing- not use his rage.
