The Sound and the Fury is a novel by the American author William Faulkner. It employs several narrative styles, including stream of consciousness. Published in 1929, The Sound and the Fury was Faulkner's fourth novel, and was not immediately successful. In 1931, however, when Faulkner's sixth novel, Sanctuary, was published—a sensationalist story, which Faulkner later said was written only for ...

BB was a woman whose faith made noise. BB was a bold woman. The stories of women like BB keep me on the road. These role models sustain me when I encounter people who believe faith is a private thing we shouldn't discuss publicly. They encourage me to travel to the beat of my own engine and to find my own sound.

Doesn't that sound arrogant?" David, this is such a, I think, a common question from people particularly who are exploring the Christian faith or on their journey towards Jesus maybe. We know that Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth and the life", and that nobody gets to God except through him. Other faiths disagree.
